The Top Five Cybersecurity Trends In 2023

In recent years we have seen the topic of cyber security move from the IT department to the board room. As attacks have proliferated and the potential penalties, both regulatory and in terms of loss of customer trust, have increased, it has become a priority at every organizational level.

We often think of cybersecurity as an ongoing battle between hackers and criminals, and security experts, which is constantly escalating due to constant advances in technology. This is the “glamorous” side of the business that we sometimes see depicted in TV shows and movies. And indeed, threats sometimes come from hostile foreign states or devious, tech-savvy criminal masterminds. In reality, however, threats are just as likely to emerge due to improperly secured networks leaving sensitive data accidentally exposed, or unwary or indiscreet employees using non-secured devices while working from home.
